

K.J. Stokes

The Something

Somebody somewhere, did something for you it could have meant nothing, and the whole world too You may not have noticed or thought it pure chance but the something they did enriched your circumstance

There is somebody somewhere, who inexorably felt driven to do something, that made your heart melt You may never meet them or cross paths on your way yet the something they did, made you smile today

There are somebodies somewhere, wherever you go who through their kindness, help your life flow It could be a travel pass, warmly handed to you while counting your pennies, when in the queue

Maybe a stranger`s smile on a winter`s day which dazzles your heart, when life feels grey Or a snow-cleared path, wisely sprinkled with salt which aids your safe passage, free from fault

Yes, somebody somewhere, is thoughtful of you and you are that somebody, somewhere too Part of a rich tapestry, inextricably entwined the somebodies somewhere of humankind

By K.J.Stokes
Copyright 2017